

GENUINE VOLLEYBALL RECRUITING PATH BASIC

1

BRAINSTORM

Think of where you will be happy in environment and academics. Develop a rough list of possible schools that meet your vision of what college environment will work for you. Use things like Weather, School Size, Academic Majors. Think about what level of volleyball you would like as well. Take your list and make a google sheet with all the info relating to that school like Coach info team website, assistant coach info, emails and phone numbers of the coaches.

2

GET YOUR TOOLS

We recommend you create a toolkit so you can manage the recruitment process and have a way to keep track of communications properly. Get a Gmail account with your name and grad year for example, marclomeli2021@gmail.com. Also you will want to have a google sheet set up and add in your coach and club director so they can help. Also make a YouTube channel to host your recruiting videos.

3

MAKE VIDEO

Video clips are a crucial part of the process and having a simple and repeatable system to make skill videos is important. We want to show the coaches what you are up to and want to have short simple and consistent videos sent out after competitions.

This is a very crucial piece so developing a system and familiarity with an editing software is huge. We recommend picking one that has one step Youtube uploading.

4

SEND INTRO EMAILS

An Intro Email will be more in-depth and will tell a detailed picture of you. We still don't want it to be an essay but will include the important academic, sports and personal information the school can use to see if you are a great fit and to understand why you have chosen that school as a possible school for your future. Follow up emails should be content driven like when a new video is ready or an academic accomplishments and should be shorter,

5

COMPETE & FILM

Skill videos from 30 seconds to 1 minute maximum should be sent on a consistent basis to show improvement. Keep them short and focussed on your highlights only. We don't need amazing rally, just show your skill as short and concusses as possible. Coaches can tell a lot from the video don't confuse them from which player is you. Also we recommend no music or arrows or special effects. Keep the video process simple, silent, concise and consistent.

6

MANAGE SPREAD SHEET

The Google Sheet is super important so you can update your college process with all the schools you are targeting with all their info and when emails have been sent and what feedback has come back from the coaches. We recommend using google because a live version can be seen by your recruiting team and all involved in your process. Updates should be made when schools are emailed so you can have an idea of your communications.
